

14 Human Nutrition

Subtopics

- 14.0 Introduction
- 14.1 Human Digestive System
- 14.2 Histological Structure of Alimentary Canal
- 14.3 Digestive Glands
- 14.4 Physiology of Digestion
- 14.5 Absorption, Assimilation and Egestion
- 14.6 Nutritional Disorders and Disorders of Digestive System

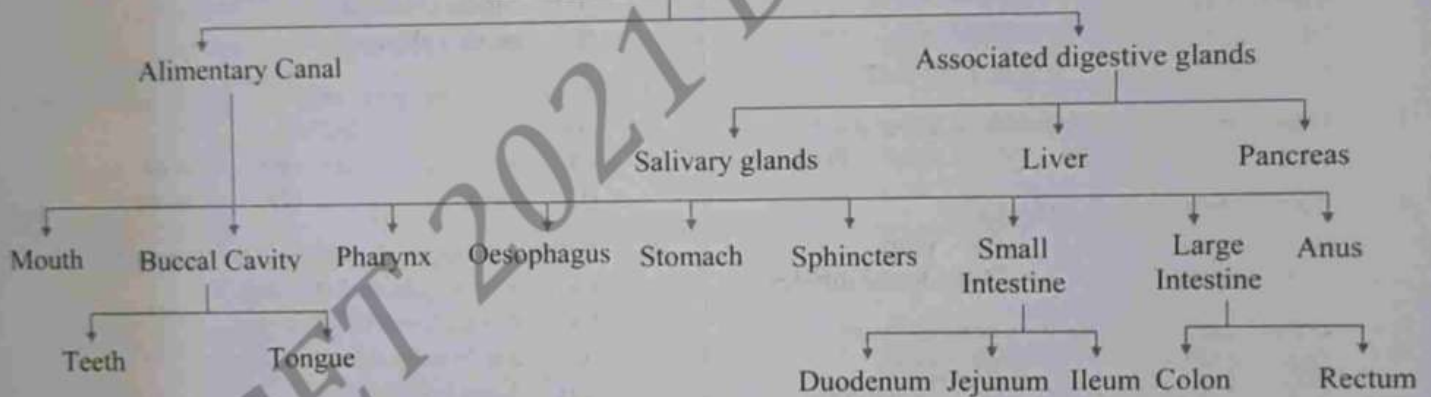

Human digestive system

The human digestive system consists of a complex tubular structure modified for performing all the necessary activities related to nutrition. It consists of the alimentary canal (Mouth, Pharynx, Oesophagus, Stomach, Intestine and Anus) and Associated digestive glands.

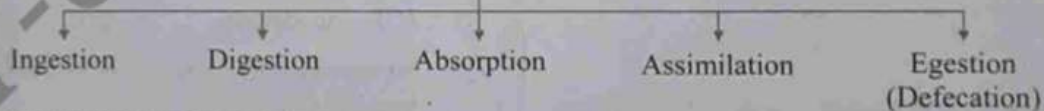

Quick Review

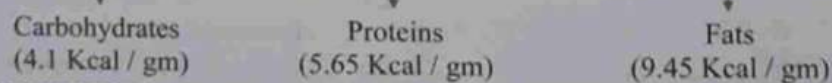

Human Digestive System

Nutrition

Calorific value of nutrients

Nutritional disorders

